It is said that the Japanese possess several very strong forts, heavily armed, and enough is known of the character and determination of that people to justify the conclusion that this fleet will meet with no common foe. Besides their land defences, the Japanese also have several armed vessels, but these are, of course, no match for any of the allied fleet. In connection with this subject it may be mentioned that, in view of the impending war, the British Minister at Washington protested against the departure from this port of the new Japanese gunboat Fusiyama, built by D.
Westervelt, and this will account for her delay up to this time. When the Fusiyama was contracted for, it was proposed to build three other vessels for the Japanese government, but other vessels for the Japanese government; but the war here and the rise in the wages of labor and the prices of material rendered it hazardous to preceed with the construction of more than one of the number. The Fusiyama is the only one which has been completed, and, as she is a very formidable vessel, mounting 12 heavy guns, Lord Lyons protested against her departure. Here the matter rests; and the contractors are besieged by the representatives of other nations to sell this craft for their na-

The forthcoming report of the Secretary of the Treasury will refute the popular error in supposing that European trade balances have been against us since the war commenced. Last year our exports exceeded the imports many millions. Mr. John Kenifick was released from
